

AmWest's Clemmens moderates Simulcast Conference panel

Many challenges continue to exist for international simulcasting, according to panelists during a featured International Simulcast Conference session moderated by Nelson Clemmens, chief executive officer of AmWest Entertainment.

With Clemmens sparking a lively discussion, the panel consisted of Terry Spargo of the Emirates Racing Authority, United Arab Emirates; John Stuart, Phumelela Gold International, South Africa; Ramon Rionda Jean, director of racing operations for Codere America, which has operations in Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Uruguay, and Alex Dadoyan, assistant vice president of the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

Differing time zones, currencies and laws are among the challenges cited.

Yet despite those complexities, AmWest is dedicated to connecting its customers with the best racing around the world. As the link to Dubai racing during the Dubai World Cup and Dubai International Racing Carnival, AmWest provides fans in North America, South America and the Caribbean with the chance to wager on the world's richest and most exciting racing.

In addition, AmWest is working with racing and simulcast organizers in South America on enhancing their product for the North American audience and is developing other exciting opportunities to offer the most prestigious racing meets.
